Safe Day Quickly finds the last safe day at work that the user marked. Then displays the last day at work, latest incident, the company name and the latest score for that day. To disable the for the day, de-select the Safe Day count in the control panel. Safety Scoreboard Standard allows for multiple displays to show on which all injuries are kept. Also, the default title 'Injury Count' on the main header can be modified. For your convenience, a WAW file is included to sound the beep whenever a crash is detected. Set a hot key to turn the alert on/off. When a day is marked as safe, the figure on the safe day count is increased by 1, and the number is updated in seconds in the control panel. To mark a day as unsafe, the figure on the last day check box is decreased by 1. When day 9 is removed from the control panel, the corresponding figure on the safe day count is updated, with the latest safety score displayed in the control panel. When day 9 is added back to the control panel, the number of safe days is updated, and the latest scores are saved. With Safety Scoreboard Standard you can keep track of all accidents that occurred at your workplace, and also how many safe days you have on average. The application contains options to help you set up a handy control panel for your employees and visitors. A control panel gives you the chance to view all the data without having to search for it. This can be important when you have multiple management groups such as hourly workers, managers, and the administration team. In addition to the control panel, you can configure the application such as how many days should be marked as safe, how many injury days should be kept, what should be displayed in the header, footer, and so on. Safety Scoreboard Standard it is available in Google Play. It allows you to see what happened last time your employees or visitors came to your workplace, how many safe days you have on average, what might have happened to your employees or visitors the previous days, and so on. You can set up a real-time dashboard that shows the accident count every day or week on the main screen.
