sg_vista_tcpip_limit_patch_light.zip Description: This patch is nearly identical to the one above, but it utilizes the 'light' versions of the registry, which contains only half of the actual registry tree (the 'HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SYSTEM\CurrentControlSet\Services\Tcpip\Parameters' 'Parameters' section), instead of the full 'HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SYSTEM\CurrentControlSet\Services\Tcpip\Parameters' 'Parameters' section. As a result, it can be applied to Vista and Win7 systems without the need for a patched tcpip.sys version as detailed in the other patch. OS: Windows Vista 32-bit/64-bit version: 1.0 date: 07/08/2008 filesize: 1KB Windows 7 Console Text Burning - A user posted this about burning discs with a Windows 7 OS: "I would like to burn the console text (cmd.exe) to a DVD-R Disc. The following script will do that for you. Create a script (whatever name, I named it cmdburn.bat) with the following in it... Change the Password of any User with the "Change Password" Tool - My friend was complaining to me about changing user passwords in Windows Vista and I told him, "There's an easy way to do that - just follow these simple steps..."Go to Users, then click on My User Name on the left. Then click on Change Password on the right.Go to the box labeled Password. Then press the following keys: - or ! to enter the Password Recovery or Reset options.1 - 4 to change the password. Your password will be shown. A little blue symbol will appear next to the password box.That's it. You've just reset your password. Now log off, close the desktop, and log back in. You should be presented with a warning screen asking if you want to change your password. A message will appear in the lower-right corner telling you the password change was successful. Click OK.That's it. Log off, close the desktop, and log back in. You should be presented with a message saying that your password was changed successfully. You can use this method on any user in any user group. 5ec8ef588b
